

A wide-angle landscape photograph of a rugged coastline. In the foreground, a steep, rocky cliff with vertical geological strata descends towards the sea. A small white lighthouse sits on a grassy plateau at the top of the cliff. The middle ground features a large, flat-topped rock formation (a mesa) with similar vertical strata, surrounded by the ocean. In the background, more distant, hazy mountains and islands are visible under a cloudy sky. The overall color palette is muted, with blues, greys, and earthy tones.
